Illinois Association of Student Councils

Convention 1995

61st Annual
I.A.S.C.
State Convention

May 4-6, 1995
Bismarck Hotel
Chicago, IL

Hosted By:

Sterling High School

Convention Delegates,

On behalf of Sterling High School and the Illinois Association of Student Councils, I would like to welcome you to the 1995 IASC State Convention. We are glad that you are here, and hope that you will have an enjoyable experience while we are together.

Let's all take advantage of the opportunity to meet new people, exchange ideas and make a "Blue Print for Success." As the leaders of tomorrow, it is important that we join together to face the future. Also, I encourage everyone to take part in as many activities as possible at convention. Many hours have been put into these next few days, with you in mind.

I hope that you all enjoy the 61st Annual Convention, and that you will be able to look back years from now and remember with a smile, your "Blue Print for Success" which was made here at the 1995 IASC State Convention.

Sincerely,

Sterling High School Student Council

Kristen's Comments

Convention time has rolled around one more time and it is now time for me to say my farewell. I never believed the moment would arrive when I would be writing the final "Kristen's Comments" and saying good-bye to friends of 4+ years.

When I was trying to write this column, a song came to mind. (Don't ask me why - it just did.) Remember the old Mickey Mouse theme song? "...Now it's time to say good-bye to all our family...M-I-C-K-E-Y M-O-U-S-E."

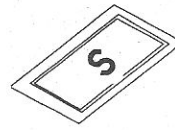

Family. Yes, that's what the IASC has basically been to me and others, a sort of extended family. Call it a family away from home if you will. We have shared the crazy moments, the tearful good-byes, the successes, the STRESS, the nervous days, the serious conversations, and the learning experiences.

Doesn't that sound like a family? And now here we are sharing one more of those moments. We have to say good-bye to another graduating class and greet a brand-new Executive Board! We've been through so much these past four years, IASC, and do not think even for a minute that I'll forget any of it.

I wish you continued success in the upcoming years. As the famous saying goes, "My work here is done."

You have the potential to do many wondrous things and I suspect twenty years from now some of you will be senators, actor/actresses, speakers, professional athletes, and maybe even the President of the United States! I can then sit back and say — "Yes, I knew them. We were in the IASC together. I knew they would make it!" I believe in you, you can do whatever you set your mind to do.

"...Now it's time to say good-bye to all our family. G-O-O-D-B-Y-E I-A-S-C."

The IASC is alive and well!

As Michael Jordan and baseball both came back strong this year, the Illinois Association of Student Councils is on the prowl once again. With membership at 290 in the 1990-91 school year, for the next two years it gradually went down until it hit it's all time low last year at 236. Now, at this point of the year (the total should be higher by the end of the Convention) the current IASC membership is at 239. I feel that this increase in state membership is just a sign for bigger and better things to come. Everyone better watch out for the IASC — because it's

Honor Council Update

Wow! What an incredible year for Honor Council! I've had more applications submitted this year than any previous year. Hopefully, the program has proved beneficial for each school that has participated. My own school implemented a few new projects to help complete their book, one which sent thirty students to a local retirement home. I noticed that my school travels the same path year after year, but this year we strayed away from the monotonous road usually traveled, and tried a few new projects. I would like to say this ambition could be attributed to the Honor Council Program.

If you did not submit a book this year, please consider doing so in the future. The remarkable effects of the Honor Council Program will guaranteed your council a productive year.

STAND AND DELIVER

Auburn High School

Every experienced chairman has faced the challenge of trying to plan an event involving everyone within a large group. However, when push comes to shove - and that deadline is staring you right in the face - it is very tempting for you as a chairman to try to accomplish everything all by yourself. Although it may sound tempting, this leadership style alienates members of a committee and should be avoided. As a leader within a committee or council, it is imperative that you understand the two most important components of leading a large group - where to stand and how to deliver.

Before any debate, proposals, or action originates in your student council, you must know where to stand. There are three of these basic stances which you must learn to recognize and use correctly.

First of all - and most obviously - you must stand up for what is right. As a leader, you know that what is right for you may not always be right for the group. Also, you must know that what is right for the group is not always popular. By standing up for what is right for your council in the long run - not what might be easy or a quick-fix - you show your responsibility as a leader.

Secondly, you must know when to stand aside and help encourage others to lead. As a newly elected president or chairman moving towards your senior year, it is important for you to realize that you will not always be around to provide the needed leadership. It is not your duty as a mentor - but your responsibility - to be able to stand aside and nurture those students who will be assuming a leadership role in the next few years.

Lastly, you must know when not to stand up at all. This stance is for those students who tend to monopolize discussion with the "importance" or "influence" of their opinion. If, as a leader, you know that an issue is beyond your control or the control of your organization, you must not risk making a stand that will hurt either's image.

After you and your council have made your stance on an issue, the true strength of your leadership is tested in your ability to deliver. When working in a big group, the best way to deliver a product without alienating anyone is to try to involve everyone. Many times, the most willing are often the most enthusiastic about completing the task at hand. If not enough volunteers are present, however, you must know how to delegate.

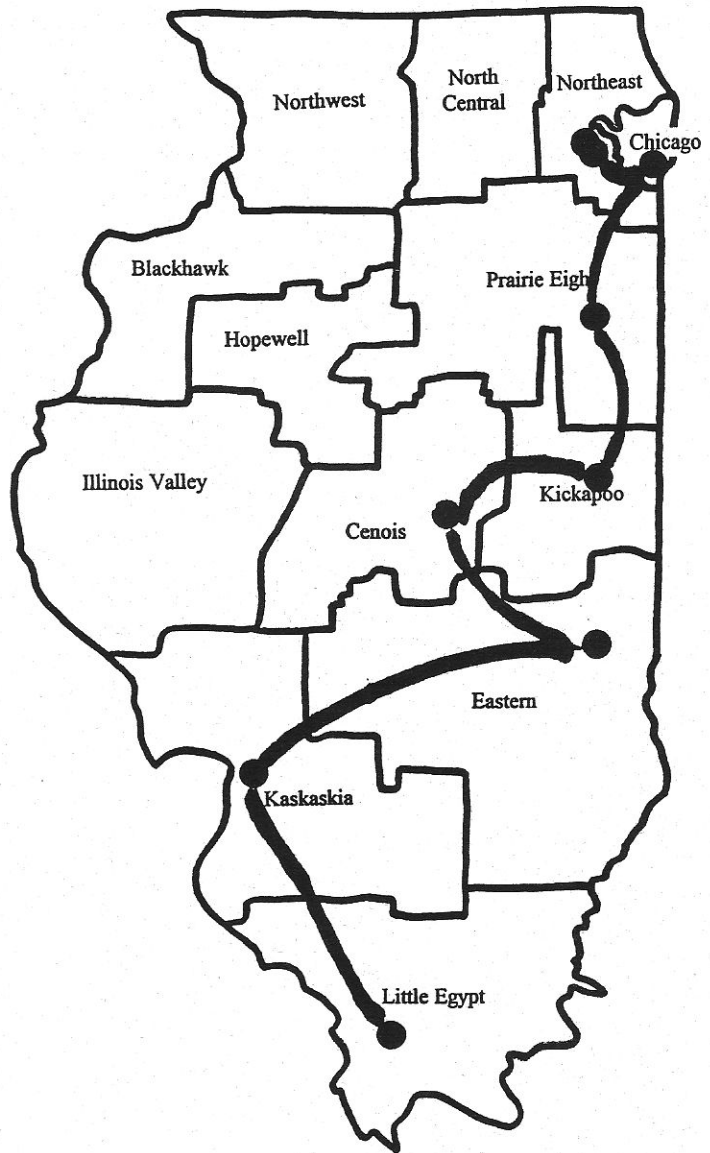

If everything fails, however, and time is running out, you must be willing to put your integrity on the line. When asserting your authority as a leader, you must be conscious of moving toward accomplishing your goal, without chastising people for past mistakes. If, as a leader, you are not willing to dedicate yourself to an important cause, you cannot expect others to do so.

As a leader, people will look to you for guidance. The next time your council embarks on a major task, take a quick moment to identify where you need to stand and how you will be able to deliver the best results possible. If you are able to identify these two components, you have already started your council on the road to success.

Kristen Clark, IASC President

*Kristen's
Journey through Illinois over the past year!* →

Throughout the year, the IASC presidency has taken me to several different states and cities in Illinois. The road has been a long and very enjoyable one, and here it is almost ready to end. I have to come to another intersection and I am to select another road to take. My trip on the IASC highway has been great and I will never forget the good times we've shared. Take care, and I hope our roads will cross again very soon!

Jim Harker, IASC First Vice President

Leaving Student Council in many ways means as much to me as graduating. I have spent more time this year with IASC work than with studying...

During my freshman year, I attended the State Convention and immediately got the IASC bug. From then onward, my goal was to become an IASC officer. Reaching that goal has been an amazing experience. That goal took me all over the country, and has left me alone in my room working for endless hours.

The responsibility involved in inter-school Student Council, at the district or state level, is completely unique. I have never found any other situation which gives high school students such difficult and time consuming duties.

The responsibility is what will remain with me. Sometimes it was scary to have so much to do. I can remember days there I would make a list of things to do so long that I was beyond worry, to the point of shock. I have always been a good student. I have never really had a problem working to the level my teachers expected. But, the IASC is different. Those days with the "things to do lists" made me realize that Student Council was the hardest thing I had ever tried to do. My state position has been harder than any class I have taken, and any responsibility I have ever assumed. In fact, for a year I have worked to prove to myself that I could do it. One of the most frustrating things about being a state officer is the difficulty in explaining exactly what takes up all the time. "You're in Student Council? On the State Board? So, what do you do?" Somehow, "Oh, we plan a convention," fails to express the paperwork and time commitment. It's the scale that is awesome.

Perhaps the one personal message I must be certain to say is that I have enjoyed meeting everyone. I mean that with utmost sincerity. I wish I could go to a high school with all IASC people. Even if I forget a name, I will remember everyone. Thanks for a great year!!!

Even though I think thank you does not express the correct acknowledgment of these people, I have a list that does need recognition:

My family -- Although I think they have never really understood my role, they have learned to live with phone calls and endless paper.

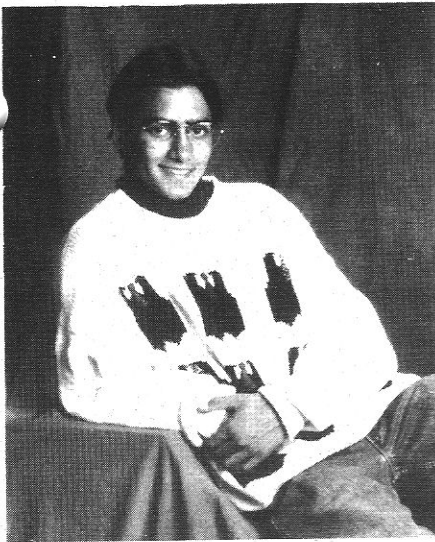

Mr. James -- My advisor, who has been always helpful, always supportive, despite the enormous responsibilities my school has assumed.

The other IASC Officers -- I am sorry if this is silly, but working with you has given me hope that maybe this world won't end in ruins. There are some highly intelligent and meticulously competent people out there.

The Advisors I have met along the way -- Like Mrs. Fuchs and Mr. Clark<sup>2</sup> and all of the others from my state and district board who have offered encouragement and advice.

My Friends -- Those few I have left, who have always helped with sorting and filing and folding and stuffing and labeling and registering...Especially the 6th hour Student Council class.

GOOD-BYE GRADUATES

It has been a great four years together. (Or less for some of the unfortunate that found out about the IASC at a later date.) But, no matter when you joined the IASC, the time spent with the special members of this organization is time that is truly unforgettable. Don't ever forget the smiles and laughter you have shared with so many others when you go. Take those smiles and laughter along with the important lessons you learned and share it with the people you meet on the rest of your road through life. Good luck with all you do, and make sure to always keep the IASC spirit alive.

Jami Seeman, IASC Secretary

It was the summer of 1992, and I was away from home attending my first (little did I know it wouldn't be my last) Student Council Workshop. About the third day of the workshop I finally got over my desire to be at home with friends and decided to acquire knowledge that would benefit my local council. As I finished my week at Millikin University, not only had I met friends that will last a life time, but derived a definition for the word LEADER. I assumed a leader was a person who had a success story in their back pocket. A leader was a person that everyone envied and looked to for encouragement. A leader to me was a person everyone liked. I always dreamed and still dream of being a leader, but not for the same reasons as I once did.

Over the last four years I have learned a lot. Actually a lot is an understatement. Despite my increase in vocabulary and math skills, I managed to experience leadership and what it means to be a leader along the way. A few months ago I sat in the office of my high school principal; he knew I had been working hard on a student council project and the results were not at all what I had expected.

I was hoping for words of comfort when out of his mouth came, "Jami, do you still like being a leader?" I sat in the chair for a moment thinking about what he had said and denied his accusation — that I was a leader. I wasn't a leader, people were mad at me for the stance I had taken on the issue, I hadn't accomplished all of the goals I had set out to accomplish, and most of all; I wasn't successful. He told me that being a leader isn't always fun, it isn't always what a person wants or what a person asks for, but a leader is a name given to a person by others who deem them worthy of that title.

I was defending the majority of my peers and just wanted to do something that would make an impact. I had stood up for what I believed in. As I sat in his office I wished that I would have never taken on the project. It wasn't until just recently that I realized what I did was what every leader has to do — pursue what they think is right. I realized that a leader isn't liked by EVERYONE, but if a leader does what he or she feels is right, people will follow and hopefully that leader will know what direction to lead them in.

I attribute this definition of LEADERSHIP to the IASC. I know that if it were not for all of my work in Student Council I may still have the same crazy definition of a leader and would have never gotten the chance to meet so many wonderful people.

Madame Chiang Kai-shek once said, "For it is true that human progress is but a mighty growing pattern woven together by the tenuous single thread united in a common effort." I strongly believe that student government is this single thread that brings so many together for that common purpose(s), being to help others and to meanwhile learn how to be a good, effective leader. A perfect example of this is the annual IASC State Convention, which brings together one-thousand plus (1000+) student leaders from practically every part of the state of Illinois. A gathering of this sort can mean only one thing, that the IASC provides something, whether it be leadership skills, communication skills, friendships, or a girl/boyfriend, that many student leaders out there desire or can gain due to their participation in this great organization.

The IASC has given me all this, except in providing me with a girlfriend. However, the IASC did allow me to meet many more beautiful people (both externally and internally) than I will probably ever meet in a period of three or four years. One doesn't realize how big of a role that an organization such as the IASC, can truly mean to a person. For me, student government and the IASC have both made a huge impact in my life. I attribute the fact that now I want to in some way get involved in politics when I am finally finished with school, which is all due to my involvement and positive experiences with student government and particularly with the IASC.

There are many things that I regret not doing during my high school years, such as learning to play the guitar, learning to snowboard, working harder in Spanish III my sophomore year, getting all those tickets for speeding, however, one thing that I would do all over again with no regrets is getting involved with student government and the IASC. Due to my involvement I have experienced many opportunities that many people of any age would love to have, such as meeting Al Gore, Reverend Jesse Jackson, Mr. Phil, and most recently the First Lady of the United States, Hillary Rodham Clinton. Don't ever let anyone put you the IASC, the NASC, or any other integral part of student government down, because there are many out there, like myself, that know all the benefits that one can gain from partaking in student government. For it is individuals like us that give that helping hand at times of need, and it is individuals such as you and myself that take the initiative and change things that are wrong by correcting them. Individuals like ourselves are indeed a rare breed, but you must keep the belief in student government alive for the years to come.

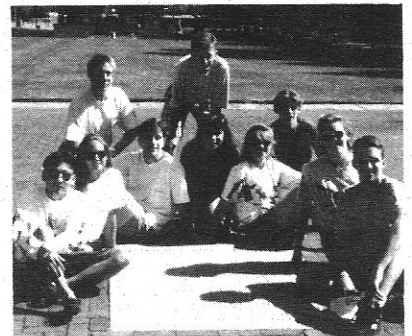

I would like to thank each and everyone of you in the Illinois Association of Student Councils for giving me something very special that I will never forget for the rest of my life. The friendships that I have made, with both students and adults, the leadership skills that I have gained, and all the memories that I hold dear to my heart, I cannot repay in anyway. Writing this farewell is very difficult for me to do, however, I know that my time has come to say good-bye. The IASC and everything associated with this great organization have just meant everything in the world to me, and I sadly say good-bye with a tear in my eye.

Melaine Schuler, Convention Secretary

MELAINE'S MESSAGES

As I look back on my year as IASC Convention Secretary, I think of many positive experiences that bring a smile to my face. The people that I have worked with and met have been a huge highlight of the year. Everyone has been wonderful, helping me to make the 61st Annual State Convention a success for all. The workshops, conventions, and other IASC events that I have attended, are times that I will carry with me for a long time. I hope that I will be able to use all that I learned about myself and become a better leader.

To the students and advisors that I worked with throughout the great state of Illinois, I say thank you. Your suggestions, hints, words of advice and overall support helped me a great deal. What a bright future we have, with you as the leaders of tomorrow!

My job would have been impossible without the very supportive administration, faculty and students at Sterling High School. Their constant words of encouragement and hard work have been irreplaceable. To Mr. Heckert and the Coordinating Committee, I must say an extra special thank you. You were a great group to work with and I truly appreciate all that you have done.

A big thank you must go to Kelsey Staranko, my right arm throughout the year. I would not have been able to put the convention together without her. There were many times when I was frustrated with everything and Kelsey helped me to see that there was in fact — a light at the end of the tunnel.

I could not have asked to work with a better group of people, than the 1994-95 IASC Executive Board. What an amazing group of people! The students and advisors both were an awesome support group, constantly giving me new ideas and words of encouragement. They also always seemed to be reminding me of some little tasks that I had to do. (There was always a long list of things to do!!) During our Board meetings, I counted my lucky blessings many times for being able to work with such wonderful people. I think that I can safely say that we made a great team!

Kristen, I'm not sure how you do so much, so well, when there are only twenty-four hours in a day. Jim, our car ride to the NCD Winter Retreat, is unforgettable. I doubt that I will ever forget seeing that turkey in the middle of the road as we came around a curve. Imran, I don't think that I have ever met anyone with as much spunk and energy as you. Thanks for all the little pep talks and words of encouragement. Jami, somehow I feel like Chenoa is a part of our Board. All of the stories, jokes, and comments about wonderful Chenoa provided many laughs for us. Yong, I have enjoyed getting to know you. You are to be commended, for a great job this year. Last but not least, Juliana, your non-stop smile is very admirable. You really made me feel welcome on the Board, even though I was a "Baby." To all of you, I say thank you for the opportunity to work with you. I will carry you with me throughout my life, as a group that will always bring a smile to my face.

I would be forgetting some important people in my life if I didn't say thank you to my parents. I truly appreciate all of the support, advice, encouragement and help that you have given me throughout my life. I say thank you from the bottom of my heart for all that you have done.

It has been a wonderful year for me. I feel honored to have been able to be a part of the IASC. It has provided many memories for me, for which I am grateful. I know that I will be able to look back and smile when I think of all of my experiences, from this past year. As a last bit of advice to all of you reading this, I say keep reaching for your dreams, and realize that you can do anything that you put your mind to. This year is proof of that. Thank you, IASC, for a great year!

Thank You, Thank You, Thank You!

--My wonderful, helpful, crazy family! I love you all so much! I know that you all have had to put up with a lot of stuff from me this year, but it was worth it. I hope you always know that I appreciate all that you have done for me, and how much I love you all. Melissa, I love you and I am sorry that I will not be in high school with you, you're great. And, you better join the IASC! Thanks again! I really love you all very much!

--Ms. Heintz, or should I say, Nancy. (I could never say it!) Well, I am all ready to graduate and move onto the big ND. But, just to let you know how much you have meant to me I'll tell you a little story. My friends and I were sitting around and someone asked the question, "If you could only bring one thing to college — what would it be?" I answered simply, "Ms. Heintz." You are always welcome to visit me! Ha, Ha, Ha!!!

--All of my faithful friends, how did you all do it? I can not even put up with me, how do you? Now that you are all pondering the answer to the unanswerable question, I will tell you just how much you mean to me. I love you all so much and I will always remember the things that we have done. All of you are so great! I will miss you all so much, and I am forever grateful to you all!

→ I know that this is short, but it was this or a novel.

--The entire Executive Board, you are all so amazing! The work accomplished this year is something we can forever be proud of! I have learned so much from you all, and I will never forget this time we spent together.

--Mr. Wonderful, Bob Perry, you are the kindest man in the universe. Not many people are as calm and understanding with people like me, as you are. Not only did you help me produce such a nice newsletter, but you taught me a lot, too. Thank you for your hours of work and endless understanding.

--All of my teachers, although many of them will never see this, I think it is important to thank them all, because they are all so great! So, thanks to you all!!

--Mr. Richards, you were always my favorite to see in "our hall" - then you moved up to the Big Office! You have helped me more than you know, and I will always be grateful! Thanks a lot!

--Ms. Ennis, thank you for taking time out of your busy schedule and listening to me this year. You always have a kind word and a I really appreciate your support!

--Last, but definitely not the least, Dr. Baudendistel. Thank you for your never ending support. Your Wildcat spirit is inspirational to everyone, and I wish you much success in the years to come.

The Illinois Association of Student Councils announces...

THE FORTY-FOURTH ANNUAL LEADERSHIP WORKSHOP PROGRAM

Who?:

YOU!!!

What?:

The development of leadership skills is the primary aim and purpose of the workshop. All learning is experimental. The basic organization of the workshop will be the "Club Plan". Delegates will be divided into groups of 20-25 members. These groups will be assigned a club name (History Club, Human Relations Club, National Honor Society, Environmental Club, etc.) which function as a hypothetical school. Each club will elect a representative to the Student Council. During the course of the workshop, each club will be given problems in relation to such areas as communications, leadership skills, problem solving techniques, etc. Each club will be under the direction of an experienced adult advisor and a junior counselor. The daily schedule will consist of general meetings, club meetings, assigned tasks, consultant lectures, special sessions, recreation, and evening sessions which include a talent show and banquet.

When?:

Workshop I: July 17-21

Workshop II: July 24-28

Where?:

Millikin University in Decatur, Illinois

Why?:

It is tons of fun and an unforgettable experience!!!

How Much?:

$240- all IASC non-members

$195- (20% member's discount), available to IASC members registering before July 1, 1995.

Fee includes registration, room, board, printed materials, insurance, supplies, and general facility and equipment costs.

OTHER STUFF YOU SHOULD KNOW...

Application:

Fill out the application form and mail together with a check for the full amount to the Summer Workshop Director. Registrations cannot be accepted without the correct fees. Make checks payable to the IASC. Application deadline is July 1. Non members' discounts apply on any registration postmarked after July 1. If a delegate cancels, the school is responsible for providing an alternate.

Who may attend:

Students from all ILLINOIS HIGH SCHOOL ASSOCIATION member schools are eligible to attend. The workshops are recommended for: student council officers and members, National Honor Society Members, and class organization officers. Please check with your Student Council advisor about openings within your school's quota. REMEMBER: Only eight delegates may attend each session from the same school (total 16). Previous IASC summer workshop participants ARE NOT ELIGIBLE TO ATTEND.

Schedule:

Delegates will register from 12:00-2:00 p.m. Monday, and the workshop will end at 11:00 a.m. Friday.

Accommodations:

Students are housed in two to a room air conditioned dormitories. Balanced meals are served.

Mail all registrations to:
Jerry Denoyer
IASC Summer Workshop
Director
303 E. Morgan Street
